Breathitt Promises Raise For State Teachers Next Two Years

LOUISVILLE (UP) — School teachers in Kentucky have a pledge from Edward T. Breathitt Jr. that he will try to raise their salaries an average of $500 over the next two years if he is elected governor.

The Hopkinsville attorney made the promise Tuesday in a statement to the board of directors of the Kentucky Education Association on the eve of its annual convention here.

Breathitt, who spent all of Tuesday campaigning in Louisville, remained in the commonwealth's largest city today to make two speeches and meet with many teachers and educators as he could.

The gubernatorial candidate, who seeks the Democratic nomination in the May 28 primary, was to speak to the South End Optimist Club at

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Hospital Administrator Bernard R. Harvey treated us to lunch the other day, along with Alan Worthington, Construction Superintendent at the new hospital project.

After lunch we were taken on a tour of the project to see just how far along the work is going.

Mr. Worthington seemed pleased with the progress on the huge project and we had to agree.

All of three floors of the hospital have been poured and the columns have been set for the fourth and final floor.

The forms have been set for the first pouring on the top floor of the building.

"There may be larger hospitals, but there won't be any more modern" was Mr. Worthington's estimate of the project.

Bernard, being an old steel man himself, has been particularly interested in the steelworkers part of the project. He worked as a steel fabricator for some time, and can understand the problems encountered by the steelworkers.

We found out something that has worried us. The folded plate is the decorative, awning like, concrete which is at the east and west entrances to the hospital.

This folded plate will also go from the main hospital to the mechanical room just south of the main building.

The patient wing will sit right on top of this folded plate. This is the wing that will go from the main building to the mechanical room.

We also found out what rubbing concrete meant. Fellow has a gadget somewhat like body men use on cars to smooth out welds on fender work. This is run over the concrete to finish it.

Mr. Worthington says that the steel reinforced concrete is as strong as steel and easier to put up. The steel reinforced concrete columns which hold up the floors, will do what they are supposed to do, he said.

Drive by and you will note that the columns are set in from the sides of the building, giving the effect that the floors along the sides have no support.

They are strong enough Mr. Worthington says. Just as strong as if the columns were set on the corners ten or fifteen feet.

We found out what sleeves are too. Sleeves are holes left in the concrete floor where pipes or conduit are to run. When the floor is poured, a round container is set in the form to allow the hole to be left. Of course these holes are placed exactly, are of exact size and are to be used for a specific purpose.

This beats drilling through the concrete after the floor is poured.

We concluded after the tour that Mr. Worthington knew what he is doing and that the hospital will be one of which we can be proud.

Thomas R. Sammons Is Lt. Colonel

Thomas Ross Sammons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sammons of Murray, has recently been promoted to Lieutenant Colonel at the Walker Air Force Base, Roswell, New Mexico, where he has been stationed since returning with his family from a tour of duty in England. He had previously been at Walker Air Force Base with the Strategic Air Command.

Wherever he was stationed near a college he enrolled in evening classes, attending three different colleges in obtaining his degree, including Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

When Mr. Sammons was sent to Mather Radar College at Mather Air Base near Sacramento he transferred to Sacramento University. After graduating from Radar College he was retained as instructor in radar giving him time to complete his college work.

The Murray native is married to the former Ann Staples and they have three children. Their oldest son, Ronald, is completing his second year at the Air Force Academy, Colorado. Michael and Michele are in school in Roswell.

Official CAP Search Called Off Today

The Civil Air Patrol has officially called off the search for H. W. "Stub" Wilson, according to information received from Col. Henry Lemmon of the CAP at Birmingham, Alabama.

Wilson has been missing since April 6 when he left Gainesville, Georgia for Terrell, Texas. He landed at Gadsden, Alabama, refueled, then took off, but to be seen again.

Wilson was flying a single engine Mooney airplane.

Not a trace has been found of the aircraft which is presumed to have crashed somewhere along the route from Gadsden to Terrell.

Wilson was associated with Phillips Mitchell and W. G. Elkins in two land development projects at Terrell and Gainesville, and used the airplane to commute between those points and Murray.

Mitchell, Elkins, Billy Thurman, Roy Lanning and other Murrayans have participated in the widespread search, but no trace of Wilson has been found.

System Of Tent And Trailer Sites Open In State Parks

Kentucky State Parks' expanded system of modern tent and trailer-camping facilities are open for the vacation season. Parks Commissioner Edward V. Fox has announced.

Enlarged to include some 720 tent sites and 185 trailer sites, the system provides facilities for camping in 14 state parks. A camping area in one other park is now under construction.

Fox said that each complete camping area has a modern central service building containing rest rooms and showers. Many of these buildings are new, he added.

Rates are standard throughout all parks, Fox said — $1.50 per site per day for a maximum six persons. Electrical service charge is 50 cents a day.

Camping facilities are located at the following parks: Levi Jackson, Kentucky Dam Village, Cumberland Falls, Columbus-Beimont, Kentucky Lake, General Butler, Pine Mountain, Carter Caves, Audubon, Lake Cumberland, Greenbo, Jenny Wiley, Natural Bridge and Pennywell Forest.

Falmouth Lake, General Burnside and Rough River Dam State Parks have primitive camping areas.

Two national parks — Mammoth Cave and Cumberland Gap — add Breaks Interstate Park also offer up-to-date camping facilities.

Sergeant Alvin York Has Relapse Tuesday

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UP) — Sgt. Alvin York, the tall mountain man who became one of America's best known heroes in World War I, was in critical condition, again today and new tests were planned in an effort to determine what caused his relapse.

The Congressional Medal of Honor winner was taken off the critically ill list at St. Thomas Hospital Tuesday morning and doctors said there had been "definite improvement" in his condition.

A few hours later, York, 75, developed a fever and an upset stomach.

Details For Glaucoma Clinic Ready

Yandall W. Frasier, chairman of the arrangements committee for the glaucoma clinic, said today that details for the two-night clinic are being completed.

The glaucoma clinics sponsored by the Murray Lions Club in cooperation with the health department and Kentucky Society for Prevention of Blindness, will be held April 25th and 26th.

Trained professional workers will be on hand on both Thursday and Friday night to conduct the free glaucoma tests, Frasier said. The testing will be done from 5:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. each night.

Robertson School has been selected as the site for the clinics. The city elementary school is located on Williams Avenue just off West Main Street.

A large number of both city and county residents are expected to take advantage of this opportunity to get a free glaucoma check and plans are being made to handle efficiently a large number each night.

The screening will not take long and will consist of a simple visual acuity test and a tonometer reading. The tonometer is a simple, yet effective instrument which measures pressure in the eye. The test is quick and painless.

Glaucoma is a common, progressive eye disease which leads to blindness if not diagnosed and treated early. Frequently symptoms in the early stages, an estimated two Kentuckians in every 100 have the disease and do not know it.

The clinics are being sponsored by the Lions Club as part of its sight conservation program.

STATE SENATOR

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF THE THIRTY-FIRST SENATORIAL DISTRICT, COMPOSED OF CALLOWAY, CHRISTIAN AND TRIGG COUNTIES, KENTUCKY:

As the first person to file for the Democratic nomination for Senator of the Thirty-First Senatorial District, I hereby announce my candidacy for that office, subject to the Democratic primary to be held May 28, 1963.

I am a native of Trigg County, the son of the late Ben T. White and Virginia Jackson White, am married to the former Mary Russell Williams, a native of Calloway County, and am a member of the Cadiz Baptist Church. I attended the public schools of Trigg County, and am a graduate of Centre College and of Harvard University Law School.

I am now engaged in the practice of law in Cadiz, and have practiced law since my graduation from law school, except for the duration of World War II; during which time I was a member of the U.S. Armed Forces and served in England, France and Germany. I am a member and the Legal Counsel for the American Legion, Post No. 74, at Cadiz, and am a member of the Cadiz, Kentucky and the American Bar Associations.

This is the first time I have sought public office, and if I did not think I could be of real service to my State and to the Counties of my District I would not now be a candidate.

During this campaign, and afterward, if elected, I shall be pleased to discuss with any person of this District any legislative matters in which they are interested.

This district is too large for me to see all the voters before the date of the primary, but I expect to see as many of you as possible, and if you think I have the qualifications to make you a good Senator, I will appreciate your vote and influence.

WINTER OF OUR DISCONTENT
By JOHN STEINBECK
1962 Nobel Prize Winner

CHAPTER 28
POLICE Chief Stoney came close to me and his iron hand grasped my upper arm so tightly that it hurt. "Ethan," he said fiercely, "do you think I'm a good cop?"

"The best," I said. "I aim to be. I want to be. Eth-do you think it's right to make a man tell on his friends to save himself?"

"No, I don't." "Neither do I. I can't admire such a government. What scares me, Eth, is-I won't be a good cop any more because I won't admire what I'm doing."

"Did they catch you out, Chief?" "It's like the saying. So many laws you can't take a deep breath without you break one. But the guys were my friends! You won't leak, Ethan?"

"No, I won't. You forgot your TV dinner, Chief." "Yeah," he said. "I'll go home and take off my shoes and watch how those television cops do it. See you, Eth."

I liked Stoney. I guess he is a good officer. I wonder where the line falls. I was closing up shop when Joey Morphy sauntered in. "Quick!" I said, and I closed the double front doors and drew the dark green shades. "Speak in a whisper."

"What's got into you?" "Someone might want to buy something."

"Yeah! I know what you mean. I hate long holidays. Brings out the worst in everybody."

"We're going on a trip." "You poor devil. Where?" "I don't know. We haven't fought out that yet."

"Something's going on. Do you know what it is?" "Give me a clue."

"I can't. I just feel it. Hair on the back of my neck kind of itches. That's a sure sign. Everybody's a little out of synch."

"Maybe you just imagine it." "Maybe. But Mr. Baker doesn't take holidays. He was in one hell of a hurry to get out of town."

I laughed. "Have you checked the books?" "Know something? I did."

"Don't tell me you're suspicious." "It's an instinct. If anything's just a little bit out of norm, my alarm goes off."

"What a way to live! I just thought if you'd heard something, you'd tell me—that is, if it was any of my business. I think I'd tell anybody anything I know. Maybe that's why nobody ever tells me anything. Going home?"

"No, I think I'll go eat across the street."

There it came—the Town Manager, the council, the magistrates, the works. I listened without hearing—sad and heavy. Maybe they had been doing what they were charged with, but they'd been doing it so long they didn't think it was wrong. Even if they were innocent they couldn't be cleared before the local election, and even if a man is cleared the charge is remembered. They were surrounded. They must have known that. I listened for a mention of Stoney and it didn't come so I guess he had traded them for immunity. No wonder he felt so raw and alone.

Mary was listening at the door. "Well!" she said. "We haven't had so much excitement in a long time. Do you think it's true, Ethan?" "Doesn't matter," I said. "That's not what it's for."

"I wonder what Mr. Baker thinks." "He went on a holiday. Yeah, I wonder what he feels." Allen grew restive because his music was interrupted. The new and dinner and dishes put off our trip problem—until it was too late for a decision or for further tears and quarrelling.

In bed I got to shivering all over. The cold, passionless savagery of the attack chilled right through the warm summer night.

Mary said, "You're all goose lumps, dear. Do you think you have a virus?"

"No, my fancy. I guess I was just feeling what those men must feel. They must feel awful."

"Stop it, Ethan. You can't take other people's troubles on your shoulders."

"I can because I do."

"I wonder if you'll ever be a businessman. You're too sensitive, Ethan. It's not your crime."

"I was thinking maybe it is—everybody's crime."

"I don't understand."

"I don't much either, sweetheart."

"If there was only someone who could stay with them."

"Repeat, please, Columbine!" "How I would love to take a holiday just with you. It's been forever."

"We're short on unattached elderly female relatives. Put your mind to it. If only we could then or salt or pickle them for a little while. Mary, madonna, put your mind to it. I ache to be alone with you in a strange place."

"Darling, I know, darling. I know it's been hard on you. Don't think I don't know. I'll try to think of something. I really will. Of course I love them but—"

"I know."

"Will they put them in jail?" "I wish we could—"

"Those men?" "No. It won't be necessary. They can't even appear before next Tuesday, and Thursday is election. That's what it's for."

"Ethan, that's cynical. You aren't like that. We'll have to go away if you're getting cynical because that wasn't a joke, the way you said it. I know your jokes. You meant that."

A fear struck me. I was showing through.

"The immediate was to get the money, and that move was so carefully prepared and timed as an electric circuit..." the story continues here tomorrow.

Dear Abby..

Reverse Psychology!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The husband with the perfume on his shoulder reminded me of something funny. A few years ago I was standing in the rear of an elevator when three men got in. One man in a light gray suit was standing directly in front of me when his friend, in a playful gesture (not seeing me), showed him back. He left with a perfect imprint of my lips right between his shoulder blades. I wonder what his wife thought when he got home?

MRS. G.
DEAR MRS. G.: What better proof could a wife want that her husband wouldn't even turn around to LOOK at another woman?

DEAR ABBY: We don't mean to interfere in anyone else's business, but we have a neighbor who has a little girl two-and-a-half years old. We don't think she treats this little girl right. She doesn't walk or talk, and the mother keeps her strapped in a chair all day long. The poor angel is so bitter and frustrated she sometimes bites herself until she bleeds. The mother says the little girl is "bad." But how can she be "bad" when she is strapped in a chair all day long? What do you suggest?

NO NAME PLEASE
DEAR NO NAME: The mother should be reported to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. If you have no local society, ask your law enforcement officer where to report this.

DEAR ABBY: That man at the stamp window who told the "citizens" who complained that postage rates were too high either to deliver the letter himself, or call long distance, should keep this in mind: Long distance phone rates have recently been reduced for the 33rd time since 1934. A record of consistently improved service has been established. Meanwhile, the postage rates have doubled, without any improved service. Tax dollars are still needed to subsidize mail service.

JUST FOR THE RECORD
P.S. If you don't receive this, I'll call you long distance.
DEAR JUST: Don't call. Write.
